What You Need To Know About RISA Membership

Code of Ethics & Good Practices

RISA members agree to abide by the Association's Code of Ethics & Good Practices. Any violation of the Code may result in the loss of RISA membership.

Qualifications for Membership

A firm must be operated on a for-profit basis as a separately identifiable entity that provides temporary help or other staffing services to third parties and does not charge its employees a fee for placing them in jobs. A company must be open for business and actively placing employees on assignment in order to join RISA. Only the headquarters office of a staffing firm may become an active member. Active members are entitled to one vote at all RISA membership meetings. All branch, franchised, and licensed offices of active members will be designated as nonvoting affiliate members. These offices may be eligible to receive RISA publications at no extra charge. Please contact RISA for further information.

No staffing firm shall be eligible for RISA membership unless dues are paid by all staffing firms that have an ownership interest in or are under the common ownership with such firm. Associate membership is available to companies that provide products or services to the staffing industry.

Dues Structure

Membership dues will be a rate set by the Board of Directors annually based on the budget. Association dues shall be set for the calendar year but prorated quarterly for new members. Special assessments for special needs, such as legislative expenses, may be levied upon the members at the direction of the Board of Directors and shall be accompanied by proper explanation. However, special assessment may not be more than 25% of the Association annual dues unless such assessment is approved by membership. Any member may voluntarily contribute more than the amount assessed against him.

Tax Deductions

Contributions or gifts to RISA are not deductible as charitable contributions for tax purposes, but they may be deductible as an ordinary and necessary business expense. Please note that the law requires that the deductible amount of any trade association dues must be reduced to the extent the association incurs expenses during the year for certain specified legislative and political activities. RISA estimates that five percent of annual membership dues are used for such activities and therefore will not be deductible.

Membership Year

RISA membership is based on the calendar year, January 1st to December 31st.
